$10,000 Stolen in Ulster Bank Heist

BONANZA BRANCH . . . SITE OF TODAY'S ARMED ROBBERY.

By JON POWERS

TOWN OF ULSTER

An all-points bulletin has been broadcast for four armed bandits—including a woman—who held up the Bonanza Branch of Heritage Savings Bank this morning and escaped with an estimated $10,000 in cash.

Roadblocks were set up today throughout Ulster County as police pressed their search for the three black males, one black female and the dark colored car they were driving. Police have not been able to positively identify the suspects.

No one was injured in today's armed robbery, but three bank employees and four customers were held at gunpoint for several terror-filled minutes before the bandits locked them in a back room and fled the bank with the money.

The robbery occurred shortly after the bank opened at 9 a.m. today. The suspects reportedly approached the bank on Ulster Avenue Mall from the south, pulled into the bank's parking lot and stopped the car in the driveway with the auto pointed toward Route 9W.

The four—who all reportedly were carrying revolvers—walked through the front door of the bank and informed the seven employees and customers that a holdup was taking place.

The teller on duty at the bank was identified as Dee DeGregorio. She told police that at least one of the robbers walked behind the cashier's counter, ordered her to lie on the floor, and then rifled through several money drawers, removing the contents.

The robbers then ordered Miss DeGregorio to open the bank's main vault. They opened several drawers and cabinets inside the vault, but a bank official said today it is not believed the bandits escaped with any cash from the vault.

The seven employees and customers were then herded to the rear of the bank and locked inside the men's room. They were discovered shortly before 10 a.m. when the branch manager, Ken Millham, arrived at the bank, couldn't find anyone inside and finally discovered the seven locked in the bathroom.

State Police at Hurley said today they don't know which direction the robbers took when they left the bank. The escape vehicle, however, was identified as possibly being dark bronze and dark blue with a light top.

Francis Kugelman Jr., vice-president of Heritage Savings Bank, said today it is believed the bandits escaped with approximately $10,000 in mixed denominations. But Clifford A. Henze, president of Heritage Savings Bank, said officials won't be able to determine the exact amount of money taken until they can process the deposits and withdrawals made prior to the holdup.

A complete inventory was delayed today while police dusted counter tops, drawers and the inside of the vault for fingerprints.

Police swarmed throughout the bank today questioning employees and bank officials. The four customers who were inside the building when the robbery occurred were taken to State Police headquarters at Hurley for questioning and to look through mug shots in an attempt to identify the suspects.

The customers were not identified.

State Police Lieutenant Edward Minahan, with Senior BCI Investigator Harold Turner and BCI Lieutenant Donald Pinto headed the investigation. The FBI has also been called in for assistance. The Ulster County Sheriff's Department and Town of Ulster constables also participated.

It was learned today that police believe they have a film of the bank robbery, taken by an automatic camera device that records all activities inside the bank. Efforts were being made today to process the film inside the camera.

As soon as the robbery was reported, police fanned out throughout Ulster County in search of the suspects' car. Roadblocks were set up at the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, as well as on all major roads leading out of the area.

Fierce Battle Rages Across Sinai Desert

By United Press International

Thousands of troops and hundreds of tanks and planes locked in combat in the Sinai desert today with both Egypt and Israel claiming initial successes in what could be the decisive battle of the new Middle East war.

With virtually the whole Egyptian army now reported across the Suez canal in Sinai, the Egyptian forces were striking for the three crucial passes about 20 miles from the waterway which are the strategic key to the peninsula.

On the northern front in Syria, Israeli forces formed "like a fist" at the crossroads town of Sasa, 22 miles from the ancient capital of Damascus, but apparently halted there.

Israeli tankers told newsmen at the front that some armored units were within 14 miles of Damascus and artillery was shelling the outskirts, but in Tel Aviv a military spokesman said: "We have not attempted and have not made any serious incursions further into Syria."

In other action, Israeli warships bombarded the Egyptian coastal commando base of Ras Gharib on the Gulf of Suez, 120 miles west of the canal, and left it in flames, according to an Israeli spokesman.

The Syrian command said Israeli warplanes attacked the port cities of Latakia and Tartous, hitting "civilian targets," and lost one plane. With the new Middle East war in its 10th day, the decisive battle-ground was in the Sinai, where the Egyptian forces appeared to be striking for the passes of Khatmia in the north, El Gedi in the center and Mitla in the south. The passes control the desert roads.

At dawn Sunday, the Egyptian launched a massive offensive which Cairo spokesmen reported advanced all along the 102-mile waterway in its first day, destroying 150 Israeli tanks. The Israelis claimed they stopped it cold, knocking out 220 Egyptian tanks and killing about 1,000 Egyptian attackers.

The contradictory claims continued today. An Israeli spokesman in Tel Aviv said it beat back another mass Egyptian assault led by tanks in the northern Sinai where Israeli forces are blocking the road that leads along the Mediterranean coast.

Egyptian war communiques number 40 in Cairo said that its forces beat off Israeli counterattacks, destroying more Israeli tanks.

"The fighting today took the form of local clashes in several sectors of the front," the communiques said.

On the southern front, the Tel

Aviv command said Egypt launched a new wave of mass assaults against Israel's desert defense line today, trying to smash through a wall of tanks in the upper Sinai.

A command spokesman said the attacks marked the second day of a major Egyptian push to break through Israel's Sinai line in an apparent attempt to take pressure off Syrian forces on the northern front.

The military command in Tel Aviv said Israeli gunboats carried the war to Egypt early today, smashing a coastal commando base on the Gulf of Suez. It said the base at Ras Gharib, 120 miles west of the canal, was left in flames.

A command spokesman said the Israeli warships pulled out of Egyptian territory without any losses. "Many Egyptian boats intended for the transport of commandos were hit and set afire," he said.

Initial Opposition Surfaces To Ford's V-P Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The first organized opposition to Gerald R. Ford's nomination as vice president surfaced today. At the same time, Congress began a two-stage confirmation process which could take a month to complete.

The liberal group, Americans for Democratic Action (ADA), said its national board voted unanimously at a meeting here Sunday "to oppose confirmation of Congressman Gerald Ford as vice president."

Key congressional figures in both parties, however, have predicted that, barring the uncovering of some so far undisclosed flaw in his record, the 60-year-old House GOP leader should have an easy time being confirmed as the successor to Spiro T. Agnew.

"Congress should require a full investigation into the allegations of mishandling of the nominee's campaign funds," ADA said.

So far, the only question raised publicly about Ford's campaign finances concerns an $11,500 contribution to his 1970 campaign which he allegedly did not report to the clerk of the House.

Ford told reporters Saturday the incident could be "adequately explained." He said the money exceeded the amount his personal campaign committee was allowed to receive, and that he signed it over to Republican national headquarters for use in behalf of other candidates. He invited committees considering his confirmation to look "fully" into the incident.

The first step of the congressional process is a thorough check of the congressman's personal and professional life by the FBI and other investigators, requested by the House Judiciary and Senate Rules committees. This is expected to take about two weeks.

Then the two committees will hold separate hearings, a "haste" on the nomination, process which some sources say could take up to two more weeks. The committee chairmen, Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., and Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., have agreed to allow live television coverage of the hearings.

Former Vice President Agnew schedules television speech to the nation tonight. Story on page 2.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., assistant GOP leader, said Sunday Ford should be confirmed within a week or so after the FBI report on the nominee. "Three, four, five weeks is much too long, unless day you get into some kind of substantial question," Griffin said.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., said Congress should act with "dispatch" but not "haste" on the nomination, taking "whatever time is adequate."

Griffin and Byrd were interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

ADA said: "The apparent popularity of a nominee should not cause Congress to act quickly. Congress must remember the candidates not mally are subjected for months to public scrutiny during the campaign and election in the usual political process. That process is not now available. Therefore Congress must provide an effective substitute, recognizing that it is acting as surrogate for the electorate."

Meanwhile, Ford, confident he has nothing to hide, pressed to work for early Congressional work on his nomination so nation. Ford said he would tell that he can get on with the work of "unity."

Ford implied during talks with newsmen and in public appearances in Salt Lake City Sunday and in scheduled appearances in Portland, Ore., today that he was anxious to be confirmed and move ahead as the nation's 40th vice president.

Ford told newsmen that his talks before a local, early morning Republican breakfast and mid-morning speech to the American Retail Druggists' Association would include the need for unity at this time. The 60-year-old House Republican leader did not specify who he wanted to unite, but said it would include the White House and Congress and through them the nation.

"The nation has had enough stress over the past six months and it is time to put that aside and get on with much needed work for the benefit of the nation," Ford said he would tell the Portland Republicans and the druggists.

Two Report Taken Aboard Strange Craft

Questioned by 'Weird Creatures'

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (UPI) — A Northwestern University astronomer says the "very terrifying experience" of two men indicates that a strange craft from another planet did land in Mississippi.

"Where they are coming from and why they were here is a matter of conjecture," Dr. Allen Hynek said, "but the fact that they were here on this planet is beyond a reasonable doubt."

Hynek and Dr. James Harder of the University of California interviewed by hypnosis two shipyard workers who told authorities they were fishing from an old pier in the Pascagoula River when a "fish-shaped" vehicle emitting a bluish haze approached from the sky.

Charles Hickson, 42, and 18-year-old Calvin Parker, both of the Gautier community, have maintained throughout a week-end of intense questioning that they were taken aboard the craft by three weird creatures with wrinkled skin, crab-claw hands and pointed ears.

Hynek, who was scientific consultant to Project Bluebook when it was conducted on UFOs by the U.S. Air Force in the 1960's, said after talking to Parker and Hickson:

"There is no question in my mind that these men have had a very terrifying experience. Under no circumstances should these men." Hickson and Parker, "both scared to death and shaking all over," told the Jackson County sheriff's office of their bizarre experience Thursday night. Sheriff Fred Diamond said he believed "something" happened to the men because they were "scared to death and on the verge of a heart attack."

Other residents of the Pascagoula area reported to the sheriff's office they saw a similar UFO in the vicinity of the fishing location about the time the two men maintain they did.

The men, who have volunteered to undergo lie-detector tests, were checked for radiation exposure Friday at Keesler Air Force Base, but the results were negative.

Hynek said although the men were able to be hypnotized, their experience was so traumatic that it was essential to progress slowly. "These are not imbalanced people," Harder said. "They're not crackpots." "There was definitely something here that was not terrestrial, of the earth," he said.

Agnew Sets TV Speech Tonight

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, who has been in seclusion since he resigned and pleaded "no contest" to a tax charge, has scheduled a television speech to the nation tonight.

Both CBS and NBC said Sunday they would broadcast the speech live on radio and television at 7:30 p.m. EDT. ABC said it had not made a final decision whether to have live coverage.

On Thursday, the day after he resigned and was given three year's probation and a $10,000 fine in Baltimore, Agnew went to his office in the Executive Office Building and worked most of the day on the speech.

His press aide, J. Marsh Thomson, said then the speech would be largely Agnew's own words, that his speechwriters were not helping him with it.

Since then, Agnew has all but disappeared from sight. President Nixon did not mention his name Friday when he nominated House GOP Leader Gerald R. Ford to succeed him.

When a reporter tried to call Agnew Sunday, the White House switchboard said it could no longer put calls through to his house.

Thomson, in recent days, has been saying he no longer is a spokesman for the former vice president.

Agnew has been given the use of his office for a "reasonable" transition period.

The Justice Department had presented Agnew with a 40-page "exposition of evidence," accusing him of accepting $85,000 in cash from contractors doing business with the state, while he was governor and vice president. His plea of "no contest" dealt only with one charge of tax evasion. In making the plea, Agnew declared: "At no time have I enriched myself at the expense of the public trust."

Earlier, Agnew had severely chastised the Justice Department for "outrageous" conduct in spreading news "leaks" against him, which he said denied him fair treatment at the bar of justice.

Nixon Taking Case to Supreme Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon this week is expected to appeal to the Supreme Court a federal court ruling that he must relinquish nine Watergate-related tape recordings.

The White House said Sunday Nixon's lawyers still are studying the 41-page decision made Friday by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. It ruled that the tapes must be submitted to U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica for inspection as to their relevancy to a grand jury investigation of the Watergate burglary and the ensuing cover-up.

The appeals court gave Nixon's lawyers until Friday to appeal its 5-2 ruling.

The disputed doctrine of executive privilege is expected to remain the chief argument of the White House in opposing special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox's request for the tapes of conversations held between the President and his aides.

"The Constitution mentions no executive privileges, much less any absolute executive privileges," the court said.

The ruling upheld Sirica's Aug. 26 decision and ordered the tapes given to the judge, who would decide which portions, if any, may be withheld from the grand jury on grounds they relate only to "national defense or foreign relations."

But Cox was given the right to inspect the tapes with Sirica so he could argue any presidential claim of irrelevance. If Cox is allowed to listen to all of the tapes, the appeals court ruled, the White House would have a chance to counter any of the prosecutor's arguments.

The court said Nixon lost the right of confidentiality for the tapes when he allowed some of his former aides to testify before the grand jury and the Senate Watergate committee about what was said.

It further rejected Nixon's claims that his political mandate and executive privilege entitled him to immunity from court orders. "These are invitations to refashion the Constitution, and we reject them," the court majority said.

Nixon has said he would obey only a "definitive" order from the Supreme Court, without explaining what he meant by the term.

The court also asked that Cox and Nixon's lawyers try again to resolve the dispute themselves, and Cox said he was willing. Previous negotiations broke down three weeks ago.

In another Watergate development, it was reported Sunday that the Senate committee has begun investigating Nixon's personal finances because of allegations that billionaire Howard Hughes made two $50,000 cash payments in 1969 and 1970 to Nixon friend Charles G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

The Washington Post quoted the "informed sources" as saying Post reported.

the committee will try to subpoena the President's records dealing with his Florida and California real estate holdings and will seek testimony from his personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods.

"Committee sources said that Rebozo has also been unable to explain satisfactorily why the $100,000 was kept in safe deposit boxes for nearly three years and then returned," the Post reported.

Fire Sweeps Boston Suburb

CHELSEA, Mass. (UPI) — Fire fed by winds gusting to more than 40 mph swept "like a tornado" through a depressed area of scrapyards and tenements Sunday, destroying nearly a quarter of the city and forcing more than 2,000 persons to evacuate their homes.

There were no deaths or serious injuries.

Mayor Philip Spelman and Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., urged the government to declare the densely populated city of more than 30,000 persons just north of Boston a federal disaster area.

Some 500 National Guardsmen were ordered into city streets early today to help police guard against possible looting.

Spelman told a midnight news conference after the general alarm blare was declared under control that many human lives were saved because the fire started at 4 p.m., in daylight.

"If this had started at 3 or 4 in the morning, God only know what would have happened," he said.

"It swept through the city like a tornado...the winds were high—very high," the mayor said. He said the city "would have been in real trouble" if it had not been for railroad tracks dividing it which created a natural fire line.

Asked what portion of the city was damaged, he replied, "I would say between 20 and 30 per cent."

Officials estimated the fire spread across 20 to 30 city blocks.

Crowds Gather for Future View

History Beckons West Strand

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

"Kingston hasn't seen this much action since they set fire to it," enthused contractor Robert C. Johnson, as crowds milled along a cordoned-off West Strand in Rondout, Sunday.

And action there was as Uptown, Midtown and Downtown residents gathered through the afternoon to an indoor-outdoor party tossed by Johnson to unveil a restoration project he feels could transform Rondout into a major tourist attraction. Flowers bloomed from dozens of pots in The Daily Freeman parking lot, and music erupted from the same area as Diamond Jim's Band held forth. A popcorn maker and a hotdog vendor did a brisk business. A street bazaar offered books, clothes, toys, patchwork pillows and quilts, ceramics and jewelry for sale. A long defunct saloon threw open its doors to dispense beer and champagne and more music.

Through it all, Johnson — wearing a shirt with DOWN-

TOWN in foot high letters emblazoned on its back — drummed up enthusiasm for his hopes of returning the area to the grandeur it offered during its steamboating heyday.

And he had his supporters, among them Kingston Mayor Francis R. Koenig, who agreed "This would be a beautiful thing if Johnson could put it together."

He has a good thought here and I told him we'd be glad to help him all we can, and we're going to . . . It's just a question of putting all the pieces together."

Koenig also said the Chicago architect who had been in town a month ago to tour the old City Hall and the Kingston Library had seen the seven brick and one marble 19th century buildings still standing on West Strand; had termed them "beautiful," and advised: "Don't lose it!"

Against the setting of deterioration as the area exists today, Johnson exhibited blueprints of the block as it could be in the future, flourishing with such old-time attractions as saloons, leather goods, book, silver, pottery, and flower shops; a general store and market fair.

He has already acquired two buildings on the block; is pushing hard for the remainder. And while admitting that some very high finance will be involved, Johnson insists Downtown could come to life again through restoration and governmental aid.

Another who agrees is Peter Anderson, former rehabilitation specialist for the City of Kingston. "Maybe we're hitting at the right time," he says. "There's a good possibility of getting some of the millions just released by state and federal agencies for such projects. And all we need to pull it off here is a quarter of a million."

Developer Seeks Approval For 168 Units in Rosendale

ROSENDALE

The Rosendale Village Zoning Board of Appeals will meet Nov. 12 to consider a zoning change that would permit a Long Island developer to build a large apartment and condominium complex in the village.

Developer Mario Renda has asked for a change from single family residential to multiple dwelling zoning for a 14-acre plot on Creek Locks Road just east of Route 32, where he hopes to construct a 168-unit housing complex.

Renda and his engineer, Mario Scavuzzo, were subjected to intensive questioning at Friday night's public hearing in the village hall. Renda said preliminary plans call for construction of 84 apartments and 84 condominiums, although the balance could be adjusted in line with the demand for the two types of housing. The apartments would be rented and the condominiums offered for sale, he said.

Renda said his decision to build in Rosendale was not influenced by the development of Stewart Airport in Orange County but by the presence of IBM in Kingston. He said he planned to build the apartment first, since a survey disclosed that there were no apartments available now within seven miles of the site.

Renda repeated an earlier offer to construct his own water supply and sewage treatment plant, and said that if the village was interested in cooperating he would make the sewage plant large enough to serve the entire village.

Prominent among the questioners at the meeting was Warren Larabee, an IBM engineer who lives next door to the proposed project. Larabee pointed out that the project would effectively double the size of the village and said that there were many questions to be answered before the board reaches a decision.

ZBA Chairman Anthony Wade agreed that many questions must be answered, citing the possible impact of the project on the Rosendale schools, the effect on village taxes, fire protection, and the traffic problems the project might create on narrow Creek Locks Road and the Route 32 intersection as examples. Wade said he would seek the advice of the Ulster County Planning Board and Department of Health, both of whom must approve plans for the project. Wade also said he would ask the Department of Transportation to conduct a traffic survey in the affected area.

The tract is now zoned R-1 residential for single family dwellings with a minimum half-acre lot size. The change to multiple dwelling would permit Renda to put 12 housing units per acre on the property.

Renda said that a possible limitation on the size of the project could be the amount of water available at the site. He said he had been told by Mayor Robert Sheehan that the project could not be tied into the village water supply. He said that he had not yet made any test drillings to determine the availability of water at the site, which he has already purchased.

Several persons in the audience asked for assurance that the board would hold another meeting before making a decision, and were assured by Wade that such a meeting would be held.

Asked if he had any idea how he would vote on the zoning change request, Wade said: "Our decision will be based on the reaction of the people here. We will have to consider the effect on schools, taxes, business, highways and numerous other matters and I don't want to comment prematurely until we have considered all these factors."

Youth Faces Manslaughter

TOWN OF PLATTEKILL
A Plattekill teenager was charged with second degree manslaughter Sunday following the accidental shooting death of his 10-year-old hunting companion.

Police allege that the 16-year-old youth, who was not identified because of his age, accidentally fired a single shot that killed Patrick Lease, 10, of RD 3, Wallkill.

The mishap, according to Hurley state police BCI personnel, occurred at about 9:30 a. m. Sunday. Police reported that Lease had been hunting in a wooded area east of Route 32 in the other three youths who with Town of Plattekill with four nessed the incident.

other companions — including his brother — when the shooting took place.

The accused teenager, said police, apparently didn't realize that his gun was loaded. A bullet from the .22 caliber rifle struck Lease in the back of the head. Lease was transported to St. Luke's Hospital in Newburgh. According to police, the 10-year-old boy died at the hospital Sunday afternoon.

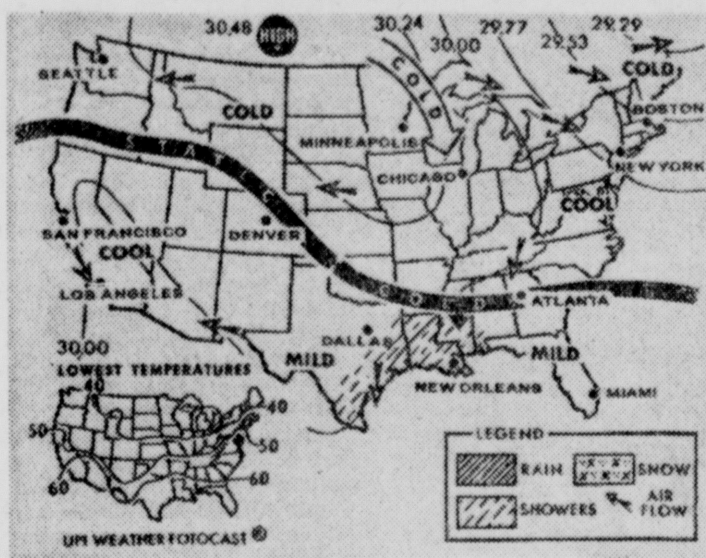

The 16-year-old boy was charged with manslaughter shortly after Lease died at the hospital. Police questioned, and because they are underage, said the authorities.

The teenager was arraigned in Plattekill Justice Court. He was released in the custody of his parents pending a later court appearance on the manslaughter charge.

Police said they also charged the teenager with third degree burglary. "Apparently the weapon that he used was stolen," said a trooper.

Police said the youth's name was not released because he is eligible for youthful offender status. The names of his three companions were also withheld, and because they are underage, said the authorities.

Plattekill town police assisted in the investigation.

Security Council Must Act

As Arab and Israeli forces pound each other in the most serious Mid-east outbreak since 1967, the big question is why did Egypt and Syria initiate outright war at this time?

The question can be answered in several ways but the most immediate conclusion is that the precipitous course undertaken by the two Arab states represents a failure of diplomacy, the inability or unwillingness of the big powers to deal firmly with the belligerents.

Most observers feel that Egypt and Syria, frustrated by the uneasy peace that has prevailed for six years, hoped by their surprise maneuver to achieve two things. They sought to satisfy the demands for action coming from militant forces within their nations. They also wanted to regain some of their lost territory so as to be in a better bargaining position before the United Nations.

Since the outside world is barred from the battle zones, news of the progress of the war must come from official government sources on both sides, reports which at the very least would have to be slanted.

So at this point it is difficult to determine who is winning.

That brings up the larger question. Can either side win? The Arab states are better prepared for battle than they were in 1967. They are better trained, better equipped. More than that, they appear to have a determination that was lacking six years ago. They also, at the outset, had the

The Blame for Inflation

William F. Fellner, retired Sterling professor of economics at Yale University, is the President's nominee for a place on his Council of Economic Advisors. His last book, written before his nomination, blames the White House and the Federal Reserve Board for over-stimulating the economy last year, producing the present high level of inflation.

"Under pressure from their opponents in last year's election, government policymakers pumped up the economy too fast and only belatedly did they shift to restraint," Fellner said in his book, "A New Look at Inflation: Economic Policy in the Early 1970's," published by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, in Washington.

The freeze last June was recognized by economists as "good politics," said Fellner, but "poor economy." He added that the President was ill-initiative, thus fighting an offensive rather than defensive war.

The Israelis, always a superb fighting force despite an inferiority in numbers, admittedly suffered heavy casualties as they engaged in customary defensive battling. Israel can ill afford to lose men or equipment.

But the most recent reports indicate the Jewish forces have seized the initiative along the Golan Heights.

So different situations could evolve and without more accurate knowledge on the going thus far, it is impossible to make any kind of intelligent forecast.

It is in this framework that the Security Council must act and act quickly. In a sense, it was the Council's vacillation in 1967, after Egypt had imposed a blockade at the Gulf of Aqaba, that sent the Israelis into action in the now-famous Six Day War. After 48 hours of fighting, when it became clear that the Egyptians were being routed, the U.N. Council adopted a cease-fire resolutions to which the belligerents agreed.

The United States has more than a detached interest in the present situation and it cannot afford to act unilaterally. It needs Arab oil too badly. But even more critical is the threat to the embattled nations themselves. The longer the fighting is allowed to continue, the more difficult it will be to contain the war.

If ever there was a propitious time for Security Council members to demonstrate they have the capacity to act responsibly and forcefully, it is now.

advised in first freezing prices, then replacing the looser Phase III with the tighter Phase IV of wage-price controls.

The White House has emphasized such things as world demand and disappointing harvests as the primary cause of the high inflation rate. Fellner agrees they are important factors, but had limited control over them. Fellner said we are now confronted with the consequences of overambitious expansionary policies.

The White House has been saying all year that price controls are not the answer to inflation, but a tight budget and tight money. That is orthodox economy with which Fellner will have no quarrel. He may clash with some senators who are strong for controls. His confirmation may be a showdown between the new liberal economy and the old cautious one. Most will say that there can't be any worse turn than the economy of the last few years.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — Harried Senate sleuths spurred by Republican complaints that the Watergate investigation has been too one-sided against the GOP, are searching for a possible Democratic spy to haul before the television cameras.

Their hottest clue is a confidential memo, which President Nixon's political hotshot, Murray Chotiner, wrote on June 9, 1972, to former Attorney General John Mitchell.

Chotiner cited a report from his spy, Seymour Freidin, identified by the code name "Chapman's Friend" that Sen. George McGovern had managed to plant his own spy in Nixon campaign headquarters.

"Richard Dougherty of the McGovern camp told Chapman's Friend in California," reported Chotiner, "that he has a line into the headquarters at 1701 Pennsylvania

The memo quoted the alleged conversation between Dougherty and Freidin.

"We have a real line,"

Dougherty supposedly said, "into the headquarters at 1701 Pennsylvania."
"You mean," asked

Chapman's Friend, "you have infiltrated them?"

"Yes," Dougherty reportedly replied.
"We get their material, including their position papers."

Commented Chotiner: "It could well be that anything the McGovern forces get is material we want the general public to have. The significant thing is that if Dougherty is being truthful, someone in the organization is passing on material without authority."

Apparently, Freidin was instructed to seek more information. He reported back to Chotiner on June 3: "I talked to Dougherty several times about (the spy), reminding him that he had mentioned this to me. He shrugged but would say no more."

We reached Dougherty, now an NBC news man, who said Freidin had invented the whole conversation.

"I have somewhere back in the hazy attic of my mind," said Dougherty, "a recollection that I told somebody we got information from Nixon headquarters in the abstract ways that we always had kids who would go in the pick up campaign material." But beyond that, Dougherty said, the McGovern forces had no pipeline into the Nixon camp.

This was reaffirmed by one of McGovern's campaign managers, Frank Mankiewicz, who recalled that a source once delivered some outdated polling data from Nixon's advertising group. But, said Mankiewicz, "we had no inside contact."

The Senate investigators, nevertheless, are still looking.

FOOD FIASCO — A Senate report, soon to be published, will charge that the Nixon Administration has mismanaged the food crisis.

"The events of the last year have thrown our food and farm policies into serious disarray," declares the report, "making it necessary to seriously reexamine America's commitment to the war against hunger"

The report is signed by Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., as chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Nutrition.

"We have chosen commercial sales of wheat to the Soviet Union," criticizes the report, "over guarantees of an adequate diet for those impoverished Americans who subsist on surplus commodities."

"We have chosen . . . to feed American livestock in support of our taste for meat over grain, instead of meeting desperate human needs in West Africa, Southeast Asia and elsewhere. . . ."

"We neither have nor appear to be pursuing with any vigor policies which would help us avoid these soul-shattering choices."

The report warns that "world agricultural production is finite. Most productive land is already in use, and only that in developed countries is capable of substantial increases in production. Most waterways available for irrigation have also been developed. Most of the world's grazing capacity is being used. Many marine biologists believe we have reached the limit in harvesting edible fish from the seas."

"Yet food demand continues to rise at an alarming rate . . . even with bumper crops, things will not be as they were."

Chairman McGovern, joined by the Senate's senior Republican, Vermont's George Aiken, has called for steps to improve "food and farm policy" reflecting "conditions of scarcity rather than surplus."

Concludes the report: "Self-interest requires that we strive to become again the world's arsenal of agricultural abundance."

"Compassion demands that we answer the rising complaints of the Americans who cannot afford enough to eat and the desperate cries of the Bengalis who have nothing to eat."

"And above all, there is conscience, which instructs this wealthiest and most influential nation to heed the ancient words, 'If any man hunger, let him eat. . . .'"

Ash Moving Up

By ROWLAND EVANS and
ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The increasingly dominant policy voice in the post-Watergate White House is not old political pro Melvin R. Laird but Roy Ash and his fellow business management experts at the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) — a development that may forebode a return to the unhealthy climate of pre-Watergate days.

Lacking his own staff and constantly pledging his early return to retirement, Laird never really filled the policy-making vacuum created by last April's hasty departure of top presidential lieutenants H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman. Instead, OMB Director Ash has quietly seized control of the government's domestic policy.

That undermines hopes that the trauma of Watergate had taught Mr. Nixon basic political lessons. Ash resembles the Haldeman-Ehrlichman model in lack of political sensitivity and contempt for Congress. Moreover, those grievous deficiencies figure to remain in the White House long after Laird has gone, taking with him his political expertise and conciliatory attitude toward Congress.

Indeed, even while there as presidential counselor, Laird political finesse is sometimes trampled by the OMB bureaucratic juggernaut. A classic case concerns recent backstage developments in a struggle waged for five years over regional economic development. Congressmen and governors of both parties favor state-federal regional commissions (on the model of the Appalachian Commission); President Nixon wants the program killed.

The President is backed up by Ash and OMB plus the Domestic Council staff inherited from Ehrlichman by Laird. But Laird himself knew Congress might override a Nixon veto of the regional development bill. Consequently, he skillfully engineered a compromise, based on an amendment by Republican Sen. Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma for the study of balanced national economic development.

But OMB was not interested in compromise. Walter D. Scott, a 41-year-old management expert recruited by Ash this year from the Chicago office of Lehman Brothers to become OMB's associate director, drafted a secret memorandum which implied Congress should be ignored because it really doesn't know its own mind. Despite passage of the Bellmon amendment under Laird's guidance, a contemptuous Scott wrote, "We don't believe that Congress is primarily concerned with that issue." Instead, he suggested phasing out regional development programs. Laird was not even shown the memo.

Bellmon, fiercely independent, hit the ceiling. Meeting with Scott last week, he believed he received OMB's pledge to respect congressional wishes. But that does not express the prevailing attitude of MB, powerful enough now and to become even more powerful once Laird leaves.

Actually, Alexander Haig, White House chief of staff, is today the President's most influential aide. But since replacing Haldeman, Haig has been immersed in Watergate and the Agnew affair. Control of domestic policy has been between Laird and Ash.

Laird has been hobbled from the start. Envisaging his White House post as a short-term rescue mission, he declined to replace Ehrlichman's Domestic Council staff with his own men.

In contrast, Ash had been reinforcing competent Budget Bureau civil servants to outside management experts such as Scott. Such an OMB policy takeover would have been mercilessly crushed by Ehrlichman. But Laird has no interest in fratricidal struggles.

Laird does get last crack at the President on policy decisions, and the gregarious and charming former Wisconsin congressional leader would seem far too much for the buttoned-down Ash. (Conferring with Ash, one White House insider told us, "is like sitting in a room with some chilled liver.")

But Mr. Nixon has never been fond of Laird personally. What's more, Laird's stock in the Oval Office fell when Albert Sindinger's confidential surveys, slipped into the President's night reading, showed consumer confidence cropping sharply after Laird's trial balloon for a variable tax increase. Laird grumbles that some White House staffers keep score of "wins" and "losses" for advisors and are giving him a low batting average. In truth, those staffers — mostly Haldeman-Ehrlichman holdovers — have come to view Ash as where the power is today and will be tomorrow.

Even so, Laird's political wisdom of a quarter-century in Washington is invaluable. Alone among Mr. Nixon's senior staffers, he predicted the House would spurn Vice President Agnew's call to investigate him. He urged Mr. Nixon to sign the farm bill, successfully, and pleaded with him to release the presidential tape recordings, unsuccessfully.

When Laird departs (between Christmas and Easter), Mr. Nixon will be left with Ash and his non-political managers. Clearly, Watergate did not reinstate the politician at the White House after all.

Three Who Shared a Park Bench

The chilly sun did no favors. It buttered three faces on a park bench with equal fervor. In the autumn there are days in Brooklyn when the mornings in Prospect Park are bright and the muggers and junkies are hiding until dark. The three faces did not know each other and didn't speak.

The man on the end was fortyish, limp as a stick of warm gum. His hands cupped his head. The eyes, of whatever hue, remained closed. The woman in the middle was old and prim, thinning blue hair waving back at the morning breeze. She had on a tan coat, sensible black shoes, and she leaned on a furred umbrella.

The other man, bald and pink, sat sideways on his end of the bench, the head emerging from a white turtleneck like a tube of toothpaste squeezed thriftily. The only thing they had in common, besides sharing the pale sun, was that each thought he or she was losing his mind.

They weren't. It was just a feeling shared by three strangers. In time, the gut-grabbing fears would go away, dissipating as silently as fog. The stick of gum lounged low, the worn tan loafers crossed halfway onto the sidewalk. The face was trim enough to face a lot of years. He was dreaming of killing himself.

He wouldn't. Revenge against his wife could be expensive. Suicide was too much. Then, too, the thought had crossed his mind that she might not be paying it — he might. He had 24 years in the U.S. Navy, an honorable discharge, and a pension.

Sometimes he got home. At other times he was in a 2,200-ton tin can fighting a typhoon off Foochow. He sent the allotment. He always sent it. Now and then he got shore leave and hurried back to the railroad flat off Atlantic Avenue.

He loved her. She loved him. There were two growing girls. All those years, the Navy had told him when to go to bed, when to get up, when to eat, what to eat, when to retire, when to go to sick bay.

Now he was home forever. She kept the house, she told the girls what to do, she told him when to get up, when to go to bed, what to eat when to eat. "I ran it all these years," she said in whispering venom, "and you're not going to change anything."

His manhood was gone. He was a stick of bent gum sunning himself in the park. It would take months, and two doctors, to convince this man that he was living the life he wanted. He had been told what to do in the Navy, and he had loved every moment of it. At home, he had the same life, except that his wife was the new Chief Petty Officer.

The old woman lifted her chin from the curving tip of the umbrella and sighed. Her man had died last winter. There were no children to bind the wound. Emotionally, she bled. Neat, she was. She dressed neat, thought neat, kept a neat house.

Nothing was ever out of place. An ashtray would not be an inch off dead center. Now it was over. He died and left a pile of money. She kept it piled neatly in a bank. How many times had she sworn to divorce him? Ten? A hundred?

He bossed her every move. He smiled his contempt when she made a little mistake. His voice flogged her raw. These days, she put everything in neat shoeboxes and labelled them in closets. Then she took them out again. At 62, she still scrubbed her own kitchen floor. "You could eat off it," she said.

She had been the slave of the tyrant. Now she was her own slave. She packed and unpacked. There was still time enough for her to realize that she had selected a tyrant because he was a tyrant. He died. She didn't realize it, but she missed her chains.

The one in the turtleneck was a priest. He had mulled it many times, and he was not a good priest. So he had left a small parish in New England and took a room in a Brooklyn fleabag. It gave him lots of time to think. And what he thought was that he had lost his mind and his immortal soul. The only fond memory he had was the sweet mother who had promised him to God. His priesthood was her goal, not his. Now he had made a break and his mind was muddled with conscience.

It would take time, and hospitalization, before he could be convinced that the Church was better without him. He had no friends in Brooklyn, no money, no job. He could not even exchange greetings with the two nice people with whom he shared a park bench.

Each one, for the first time, had the life necessary to existence. And yet each was sure he was in misery, losing something called sanity. Three faces on a park bench . . .

Koenig Outlines Federal Traffic Safety Study

KINGSTON Mayor Francis R. Koenig announced today that the city would be applying for a $10,500 federal traffic study for Kingston covering four areas, legislation, education, traffic records and bicycle safety.

The city's application will be forwarded for approval under the Federal Highway Program, through the Ulster County Traffic Safety Committee, chaired this year by a Kingston resident, Brendon Alexander.

Koenig said he first became aware of the program after a meeting with the Ulster Traffic Safety Committee "some time this summer." A formal plan was drawn up through the joint efforts of the Police Department and City Planner Robert E. Pritchard.

In the area of legislation, a program for codification of the city's traffic and parking regulations is proposed. The plan would provide patrol officers with an indexed field copy of current traffic parking ordinances. The publication would be designed in such form so as to allow regular updating as warranted. A sufficient number of copies would be prepared for use by all field and administrative officers, Koenig said.

In the functional area of traffic safety education, the plan denotes a pedestrian safety program. The particular project within this category consists of assigning a special task force of police officers to conduct instructional programs for those age groups most often involved in pedestrian accidents (i.e. under 10 and over 65 years of age). A concurrent project involving placement of walk signs and street markings would compliment the instructional program, Koenig said.

A third area identified in the safety plan is the development of a detailed traffic accident records and recording system. Implementation of this project is described as consisting of performing research into statistical and evaluation methods with the objective of developing data reports for use by police officers while investigating accidents. The resulting benefits derived from this program will enable proper planning and manpower allocations. Police administrators will be provided with a full picture of traffic accident causes and will be able to stress areas of concern to the public, Koenig said.

Specifically, police officers would conduct educational information meetings to promote adherence to bicycle safety standards while also initiating a file card registration and decal identification system. Koenig said.

The preliminary estimate in police man-hours, supplies, equipment and materials for the complete traffic safety program from 50 to 70 per cent. Non-participating personnel, resulting in a Safety Committee and be included within total grant amounts afforded to Ulster County, Koenig concluded.

Recent Federal Federal costs are usually no cash match by the city. All legislation has increased the assumed by including regular local applications must be filed with the Ulster County Traffic Safety Committee.

Police also expect this project to result in a reduction of bicycle vandalism and thefts and thereby encourage expanded use of bicycle as a transportation medium by the public.

Dye Urges Defeat Of Reapport Plan

By LYNN MULVANEY

KINGSTON "Reapportionment of the county is the one single issue which will have long term effect on the county because it will be in effect for 10 years" and Independent candidate for the County Legislature Douglas V. Dye, today urged defeat of the proposal in the Nov. 6 election.

Dye, a legislator from Dist. 2, claims that under reapportionment there will be a tendency for the larger districts to "take power away from the people."

He claimed that the legislature dragged its feet on a reapportionment plan after the 1970 census block count was received, that the Supreme Court approved it as "a temporary plan" and that the computers which came up with the 33-man reapportionment legislature do "only what you tell them to do."

Dye also claimed that if the reapportionment plan is defeated, it would not cost county taxpayer's $70,000, as proponents claim, to hold a special referendum on a new plan. He said a new plan could be presented during a primary election or at the next general election.

Dye said the ideal situation would be to have single member districts. But, he said, this is impossible without further state legislation. He suggested that many of these districts could be broken down, for instance in Dist. 5, the Town of Marlboro and the Town of Plattekill could be a single member legislative district in Dist. 8. In the same district, the Towns of Gardiner and New Paltz could be combined for a three-man district.

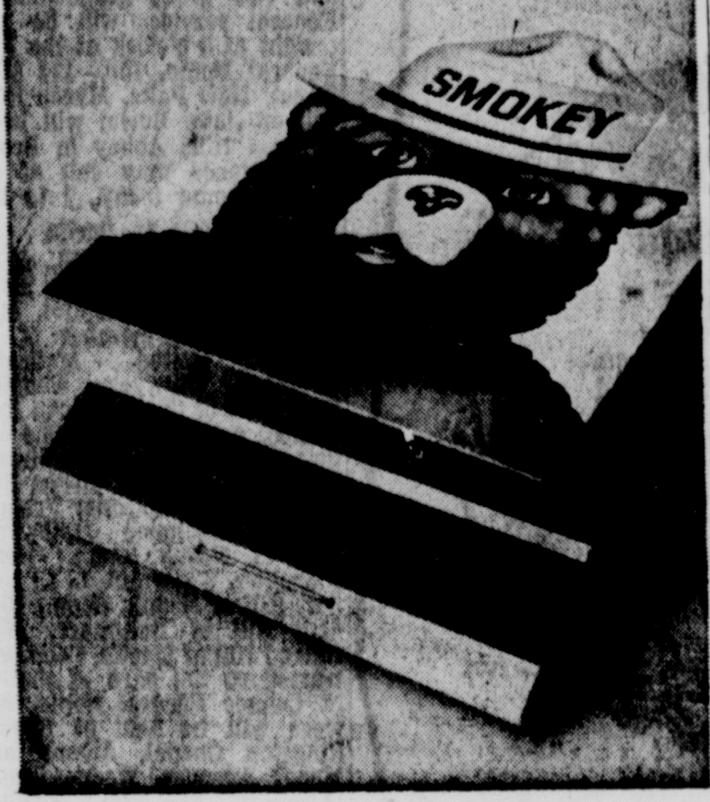

Much can be done to make the legislative districts smaller and "much more responsive to the people and not to the political bosses," Dye said.

Salvatore-Coulouris Wedding

The Rev. Msgr. Joseph Santolin officiated at the double ring wedding ceremony of Miss Joyce Mary Ann Salvatore of Glasco and Leonidas G. Coulouris of Saugerties, formerly of Athens, Greece.

Mrs. Regina Salvatore Ricks of Glasco served as matron of honor for her sister. Attendants were Susan Persley, cousin of the bride; Carolyn Salvatore, sister of the bride, and Joyce Lang. Maria Lena Rose Ricks, niece of the bride, served as flower girl.

For her bridal party, the bride selected a color scheme of yellow and apricot. Attendants wore chiffon gowns styled with A-line skirts, modified empire embroidered bodices, and bishop sleeves. The necklines and sleeves were accented with lace. Flower headpieces held their floor length veils. The attendants carried bouquets of chrysanthemums, daisies, pompons and baby's breath. The flower girl carried a bouquet of yellow roses, daisies and baby's breath.

Best man was Pete Loukrezis, cousin of the bridegroom. Ushers were Michael Tiano, Joseph Salvatore, brother of the bride, both of Glasco; and John Legg, Saugerties.

A reception was held at Flamingo Restaurant, Route 9W, Saugerties.

The bride attended Saugerties High School. Her husband attended high school in Athens, Greece, and served in the Greek Navy. He is employed by Gateway Diner, Kingston.

Benefit Planned for Restoration Of the Historic Kiersted House

Friends of Historic Kingston will sponsor an antique and rummage sale at the Kiersted House at 95 John Street, Kingston, on Thursday and Friday. Hours will be from 8:45 a.m. to 8:45 p.m. Proceeds will be used for the restoration of this historic house.

The group is presently reconstructing the exterior of the Kiersted House. Two 20th century additions have been removed, two chimneys were rebuilt, a 19th century door was installed at the front; and a new roof was added, and the exterior was painted. New shutters, period windows, a wooden gutter, and other items remain to be done.

By holding the rummage sale in the Kiersted House, Friends of Historic Kingston is focusing on the restoration on the house and is giving the public an opportunity to see the potential of this fine 19th century building.

There will be a large collection of household items, clothes, small appliances, and books. The upstairs will house a "Collector's Corner" featuring antiques donated by Fred. J. Johnston, a well known antique authority: original American prints, Italian plinths, bean pots, a Swedish rug, George Clearwater Histories, antique ironstone bowls, and old mixing bowls. Taken off an old stone house are a batten door, and paneled shutters. These are just a few of the items which will be available. Also upstairs is a section, "Nearly New," offering stylish clothes in good conditions.

Friends of Historic Kingston is interested in the preservation of historic buildings in the city and in all activities which contribute to the beautification of the City of Kingston. Interested persons are invited to join this worthwhile organization. Membership applications will be available at the sale.

After restoring the exterior of the Kiersted House to its original beauty, Friends will offer it for sale to any individual or business interested in restoring the interior of the building. Friends hope to establish a revolving fund which will enable them to restore other Kingston landmarks.

ANTIQUE SALE — Friends of Historic Kingston pose in front of the Kiersted House at 95 John Street, Kingston, with items to be offered at the group's antique sale on Thursday and Friday. Proceeds will be used to finance the restoration of the historic house. Participating in the event are (L-R) Mrs. B. P. Scogna; Mrs. Mary Caughey, chairman of the sale; Mrs. Ali Naghsh, Mrs. John Weber and Mrs. Avery Leete Smith.

Ministers Need Women Counselors

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: This is a plea for churches to consider women counselors. Your statement: "When a secretary starts crying on her boss's shoulder, she frequently winds up in his arms," was very, very true. The same could apply to ministers.

There have been more heartaches caused by women crying on their ministers' shoulders than anyone can imagine. Ask any minister's wife, and she will tell you (if she is honest) that many women have taken their problems to their clergymen and after several sessions of unbundling themselves they tell the minister they are in love with HIM!

Ministers are only human, and some are flattered, and some even try to console the troubled women in some very unethical ways.

This problem could be eliminated if the minister consulted with his female parishioners a time or two, and then turned them over to a woman for further counseling.

ONE WHO HAS SEEN MUCH

DEAR ONE: Your suggestion is an excellent one. It would lighten the burden of many an overworked clergyman. And his wife would appreciate it, too.

DEAR ABBY: I manage a large furniture store, and my problem is how to handle wild kids whose parents bring them along when they come to shop. These roughnecks tear off our price tags, pull out drawers, leaving them on the floor, and they actually jump from one sofa to the next. Most of the time the parents look the other way. When I ask the child not to do these things, many of the parents get insulted and leave.

Should I put up a sign stating that we welcome children, however, we run a furniture store not a recreational park, and parents will be charged for any damage done by their children?

How would you handle this situation?

HARRIED IN HOUSTON
DEAR HARRIED: Forget the sign. If a child proceeds to abuse your merchandise, advise the parents that they will be held responsible for damage by their children. And if damage is done, sock it to 'em!

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the man who was seriously injured in an automobile accident and had the local funeral home people "call on him" while he was still in bad shape in the hospital, reminded me of my own experience.

Six months ago I suddenly lost my husband. That was bad enough, but before he was even buried I got a "sympathy card" from a man who sells real estate. I hardly knew this man. He had written on the card: "If you want to sell your house, let me know."

I reported him to the real estate company he worked for, and now I notice he is trying to sell cars.

Annual Donation Day and Fair Slated at Home for Aged

Enthusiasm runs high with the residents and Board of Managers of The Home for the Aged, as they busily prepare for their Annual Donation Day and Fair, to be held on Thursday, Oct. 25.

Not too many years ago, "donation day" meant the trimmings for a beautifully appointed tea table, elegantly dressed members and friends (those were the days when hats and gloves were a "must"), and an atmosphere which surrounded planned musical programs, to be enjoyed by all.

Donation Day also meant the contributions by friends of the Home of bushel baskets of apples, garden vegetables and seasonal fruits which were prepared and canned for the winter months. This was particularly prevalent during the period of World War II and afterwards. In addition there was also the monetary contributions, which were used by the Board of Manager for the comfort of the residents.

With time comes progress and broadening involvement on the part of the Board members, Associate members, residents, friends and the general public. Tables will brim with donations from many in a fair-like atmosphere; the food table will be heaped with home-made delicacies; the thrift table will be adorned in "new and not so new" desirable items and the domestic table featuring aprons, knitted wear and linens.

The diligence and dedication of the residents for its success will be displayed in their own contribution consisting of hand-crocheted dolls, boutique and Christmas gift items. The interest on the part of the residents is particularly gratifying, as it is a form of therapy on their part and utilizes the talents of their aging years. They eagerly look forward to this event and spend months in preparation.

The beautifully appointed tea table will still be there, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Charles Lee. Tea will be served from 2 to 4. The fair begins at 10 a.m. and concludes at 4.

Associate members are particularly encouraged to participate and attend, and those who have not seen the Home and its beautiful setting, and wish to do so that day, will be escorted by Mrs. George Rifenburg, a member of the Board of Managers.

All proceeds from the Fair will go to the Good Cheer Fund which provides both special treats and necessities for the residents. During the past year birthday parties have been held each month. In January and February planned buffet suppers and entertainment was provided, and in July a picnic.

This is happy time for the residents, and a concerted effort by the Board of Managers. The public is invited to attend.

Mrs. William Rylance is president of the Board. Those members serving on the various committees are:

Thrift table, chairman, Mrs. Bernard Freney Sr., assisted by Mrs. Kenneth Wood, Mrs. Sam Pepper, Mrs. George Schneider, Mrs. Alfred Bruckert.

Domestic, chairman, Mrs. Arthur Oudemool, Mrs. S. B. Schwarzwaeber, Mrs. Allan Dumas; food, chairman, Mrs. Peter Corones, Mrs. Louis Smith, Mrs. Roy Sutliff, Mrs. Clifford Henze, Mrs. Irving Etchells, Mrs. Robert Loneragan.

Tea Table, chairman, Mrs. Charles Lee, Mrs. Henry Bruck, Sr., Mrs. Stanley H. Hanson, Mrs. Burton Haver; treasurers, Mrs. William Carvell, Jr., Mrs. Milton Grover; publicity and tours, Mrs. George Rifenburg.

HANDMADE ARTICLES — Mrs. George Rifenburg, left, member of the Board of Managers at the Home for the Aged, admires the assortment of articles made by Mrs. Sadie Mollott, center, and Mrs. Grace Clark, and several other residents at the Home. The items are among the many which will be available to the public at the annual Donation Day and Fair to be held Thursday, Oct. 25. (Freeman photo by Haines)

Mets Had to Battle Sun, Ump, Oakland

WILLIE COMES THROUGH — Willie Mays hits a single over second base scoring Bud Harrelson with two outs in 12th inning of Game Two of World Series Sunday. The Mets went on to beat Oakland, 10-7, to tie the series at a game apiece. (UPI)

TELLING HIS SIDE — An aging and tired looking Willie Mays describes his 12th inning single to reporters (L) following Mets' 10-7 win over Oakland. At right, Willie does some talking to Umpire Augie Donatelli following con-

troverial play at home plate in 10th inning on which Bud Harrelson was called out on Joe Rudi's throw from left field. (UPI)

Series Even After 10-7 Thriller

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Mets are back home today with a split in the first two games of the World Series after battling the sun, umpire Augie Donatelli and the Oakland A's.

All three elements gave the National League's first Sunday before the Mets pulled out a zany, 10-7, 12-inning victory in Oakland.

"I think we'll look better in New York," says Don Hahn, a Met outfielder who had to deal with the treacherous sun in the Oakland Coliseum. "The Coliseum was an awful tough park to field in... one of the toughest I've ever been in."

Cleon Jones verified Hahn's report. The Met left fielder lost a ball in that tortuous sun in the first inning, giving Joe Rudi a gift double in a two-run Oakland uprising.

"It was the worst," said Jones, "the absolute worst. I've never played in a major league ballpark where the sun is that bad."

The Mets weren't exactly thrilled with the umpiring, either. They had an opportunity to break a 6-6 tie in the 10th inning with runners at first and third and one out.

Felix Millan lifted a fly ball to Rudi in short left and Bud Harrelson tagged up and tried to score from third.

But Donatelli called him out on a bang-bang play at home. "He never touched me," said Harrelson, talking about the close play at home with A's catcher Ray Fosse.

Donatelli's decision brought several Mets storming from the dugout. Like Harrelson, they thought that Fosse missed the tag. Willie Mays, the on-deck batter, was literally down on his knees pleading with the umpire.

"There's no question in my mind that I was safe," Harrelson said after the storm had died down and the Mets had locked up Game No. 2, "but there was a question in Donatelli's mind."

The double play killed off the Mets for the moment, but they weren't completely dead as it turned out. They scored four runs in a whacky 12th inning to break the deadlock.

Then, four times in the sixth inning after a walk to Cleon Jones, a single by John Milner and a hit batsman that loaded the bases. McGraw gave up the A's final run.

The whole scene was vividly reminiscent of the Mets' September pennant drive, when all kinds of unlikely crazy bounces helped them win the National League flag.

"We felt like we would never give up," said McGraw, who pitched six fine innings of relief before needing help himself. But you gotta believe it—we've been doing things like this for the last eight weeks."

When the Mets made a rush for the National League flag, they capitalized on every conceivable break in the baseball book.

Trailing 3-2, the Mets scored four times in the sixth inning after a walk to Cleon Jones, a single by John Milner and a hit batsman that loaded the bases.

For one run, Harrelson singled to right for another and then Jerry Grote and Hahn both scored on an infield error.

After the A's scored their fourth run on a double by Reggie Jackson in the seventh and tied the score at 6-6 with a two-run rally in the ninth the Mets took command of the flow of the game.

Denied earlier opportunities to score, they finally put it out of reach in the 12th as Mays singled home the go-ahead run and the Mets pushed across three more tallies on two errors by Oakland second baseman Mike Andrews.

It was one of five errors made by the fumbling A's.

"I feel sorry for Andrews, just like I felt sorry for Felix Millan the day before," said Oakland Manager Dick Williams, talking about Millan's costly error that helped the A's beat the Mets 2-1 in Saturday's opener.

The erratic fielding produced a total of six errors in the game, which at times took on the aspect of a sandlot affair. Adding to the sandlot atmosphere was the time of the game—a record four hours and 13 minutes for the World Series. Also a total of 11 pitchers were used by both sides, and that tied a world series record.

Of course, that wicked sun didn't do much to help the professional aspect of the game.

Not only did Jones lose a ball in the high sky, but so did Mays. The sun swallowed up Deron Johnson's drive in the ninth inning as Mays skidded to his feet in a last-ditch try for the ball.

It fell for a duble, igniting the A's rally.

With the Oakland sun behind them, the Mets hoped to find their place in the sun Tuesday night in the third game of the series at Shea Stadium.

Tom Seaver will pitch for the Mets and Jim "Catfish" Hunter for the A's in a battle of right-handed aces. Manager Yogi Berra feels he could have a good hand.

"I'll take a split in Oakland anytime," said Berra, "anybody would."

It Looked Like A 'Goat' Pasture

OAKLAND (UPI) — The way the Oakland A's and New York Mets played baseball Sunday the Oakland Coliseum looked like a "goat" pasture.

It wasn't baseball's finest hour as the A's made five errors to hand the Mets a 10-7, 12-inning decision that tied the World Series at one victory apiece.

The Mets contributed an error, Willie Mays embarrassed himself by falling down four times, the A's infield got caught up in its own "trick" and veteran plate umpire Augie Donatelli, according to instant replay, blew a pivotal call.

The whole mess took a record four hours and 13 minutes to complete. A's owner Charlie Finley is in hot water again with Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and Oakland Manager Dick Williams, who rarely takes defeat gracefully, is still kicking about a misinterpretation of the rules that as his club playing with one less man.

Darold Knowles, ordinarily a good fielding pitcher, and reserve infield Mike Andrews were the obvious goats. Knowles' bad throw on a tap to the box in the sixth gave the Mets a pair of gift runs and Andrews' back-to-back errors in the 12th permitted three more was charged with a throwing unearned runs.

First baseman Gene Tenace error in the 10th and Mets starting pitcher Jerry Koosman made a throwing error in the third.

Mays, who announced his retirement after 22 seasons on Sept. 20, proved a big embarrassment. He fell down as a pinch-runner in the ninth, went down a second time trying to catch a relay by Deron Johnson in the bottom of the ninth and then mishandled a drive by Reggie Jackson in the 12th.

Johnson's hit went for a double and Jackson's for a triple.

Mays, though, atoned for his play by driving in the go-ahead run during a four-run 12th inning rally that finally wrapped up the game for New York. He even fell trying to break for first.

The A's infield tried one of the oldest "trick" plays in baseball during that 12th inning New York rally and got caught with its defenses down.

Bud Harrelson opened the 12th with a double and with winning pitcher Tug McGraw batting in an obvious bunt situation, shortstop Bert Campaneris broke for third and third baseman Sal Bando dashed almost to the plate. McGraw popped his bunt over Bando's head and made it to OOPS — Oakland second baseman Mike Andrews cringes as ground ball hit by John Milner goes through his legs. The error allowed two runs to score. Andrews later threw one away enabling another Met tally to cross the plate. The three runs were the margin of difference in New York's 10-7 win. (UPI) first with a hit as Harrelson scooted to third.

A's reliever Rollie Fingers retired the next two batters but Mays bounced a single through the box for a 7-6 lead. Then came Andrews' two errors and the Mets had a four-run inning, and eventually the victory.

Donatelli was eligible for retirement a year ago but the National League decided to keep him for another season. Augie was behind the plate Sunday and, with television cameras whirling away, wound up making one of the most controversial calls in Series history.

It was the top of the 10th. Harrelson opened the inning with a single, went to second on a sacrifice and to third on Tenace's error. That brought Felix Millan, Saturday's goat, to the plate and he hit a fly to medium left.

Harrelson dashed for home after the catch by Joe Rudi, whose throw home was a little "off target" and on the third base side. Catcher Ray Fosse nabbed the ball and, with Harrelson running by him, tried for the tag. Donatelli called Harrelson out to complete the inning but two of three different angles on instant replay showed Fosse never tagged Harrelson.

Had the run scored, the Mets would have won, 7-6, in 10 innings.

Finley, who had a run-in with the Mets' have 25."

Kuhn during last year's World Series over paying bonuses to his players in defiance of the rules, "embarrassed" the commissioner, according to a Kuhn spokesman, before the start of Saturday's game.

The A's tried to replace catcher Jose Morales, whom they had traded away, with infielder Manny Trillo on their Series roster. Under the rules, the Mets had the right of refusal, and exercised it. Finley went to Kuhn to appeal and the commissioner upheld the Mets.

Announcement of the appeal was made in the press box first and then over the public address system. That, according to Kuhn aide Joe Reichler, was "excessive" in the commissioner's mind and an act he termed detrimental to baseball.

As a result, Kuhn plans to reprimand Finley upon the conclusion of the Series. Kuhn did not indicate what sort of punishment he has in mind for Finley.

Williams was still complaining Sunday about not being able to activate Trillo, a fine fielder, for the Series.

"If I had Trillo," said Williams, "he would have been at second in the 12th and not Andrews, and maybe he doesn't boot the ball and after we score in the bottom of the 12th, I'm playing with 24 men and they

Bud Made Right Decision

OAKLAND (UPI) — Just for a fraction of a second, Bud Harrelson entertained the thought of barreling into Oakland A's catcher Ray Fosse.

As it turned out, it was just as well the slender New York Mets shortstop didn't.

In the most controversial play of the 1973 World Series between the A's and Mets, Harrelson was called out at the plate by umpire Augie Donatelli, who stood by his decision that Fosse ticked Harrelson's uniform blouse as he flashed by in the 10th inning.

The Mets eventually won the contest, 10-7, in 12 innings to send the series to New York even at 1-1, but the play at the plate was the major topic of discussion in the Mets' locker room.

"He patted me on the behind when I came to the plate in the first inning," Harrelson said of Fosse. "That's the only time he touched me all day."

Harrelson admitted that Fosse had the plate well protected on Felix Millan's short fly to left.

"I had nowhere to slide," he said. "I saw a piece of the plate on the right side so I went for it. He really had the plate blocked off. But I still don't think he touched me."

"I thought of trying to knock him over, but then I figured I didn't want to become part of his chest protector," the 158-pound Harrelson said.

Then, smiling, he added, "Good thing I didn't because I didn't have my Superman shirt on."

Manager Yogi Berra backed Harrelson. "I think he was safe," he said. "If I didn't think so, I wouldn't have gone out there (to protest). If Bud says, 'he missed me,' I believe him." Ironically, it was Harrelson who touched off the Mets' winning rally two innings later.

He hustled into second on a short fly to right and scored the first of four runs in the 12th on Willie Mays' hit.

The single by Mays atoned for a somewhat lackluster performance in the field.

Mays, who is retiring at the conclusion of the series, said he lost Deron Johnson's fly ball in left center in the ninth. The A's then down by two runs, came

Jackson's 'Finest Hour' Made for Long Day

By United Press International
Harold Jackson's "finest hour" was just one long afternoon for the Dallas Cowboys.

Jackson, the 5-foot-10, 175-pound wide receiver obtained by Los Angeles from Philadelphia for Roman Gabriel, caught four touchdown passes Sunday as the unbeaten Rams stunned the Cowboys 37-31.

Jackson teamed with quarterback John Hadl on TD passes of 53, 16, 67 and 36 yards as the Rams took a 34-14 lead at the half and then held off the Cowboys' second half rally.

"This is my finest hour in the NFL," Jackson said. "I feel I can run the deep post and just about get open every time. The key is I have to outrun the free safety. Charlie Waters told me after the game he made me look like I was All-World. He's a good player and I appreciate his saying that."

Jackson's two TD receptions and a pair of David Ray field goals gave the Rams their big lead as Dallas scored on Mel Renfro's 30-yard interception return and Calvin Hill's eight-yard run. But Roger Staubach got Dallas moving in the second half, throwing TD passes of six and 10 yards to Otto Stowe before the Cowboys ran out of gas.

"The Rams are a fine, great team with momentum," said

Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "But the Rams beat a good football team. It's tough to come back from a Monday night game like we had to play. We wanted to win more than anything but we left everything on the field in Washington, particularly emotionally."

The victory left the Rams at 5-0 and tied with Minnesota, which edged San Francisco 17-13, as the NFL's only unbeaten teams. Pittsburgh fell from the unbeaten ranks when the Steelers were upset by Cincinnati 19-7. Dallas' loss, its second straight, dropped the Cowboys a game behind Washington, which whipped the

New York Giants 21-3, in the National Conference East.

In other games, Buffalo ripped Baltimore 31-13, Oakland overcame San Diego 27-17, Philadelphia upended St. Louis 27-24. Denver trounced Houston 48-20. Kansas City tied Green Bay 10-10. Atlanta crushed Chicago 46-6, the New York Jets edged New England 9-7 and New Orleans upset Detroit 20-13. Miami is at Cleveland tonight.

Fran Tarkenton threw a 12-yard TD pass to John Gilliam and rookie Chuck Foreman plunged a yard for another score as the Vikings held off San Francisco. Paul Krause's two interceptions in the last period thwarted a 49er rally.

Horst Muhlmann kicked four field goals and rookie Booby Clark rushed for 112 yards and a TD as the Bengals stunned Pittsburgh. The Steelers were shut out until midway through the last quarter when Preston Pearson scored.

"The people came today knowing this was going to be a tough go," Bengal Coach Paul Brown said. "The excitement they felt seemed to transmit itself to our players. It was the best game we've played this year."

O.J. Simpson ran for 166 yards, including a 78-yard TD

burst, as the Bills clubbed the Colts to take over first place in the AFC East. Miami must beat Cleveland tonight to tie the surprising Bills. Rookie Joe Ferguson threw his first TD pass as a pro and ran for a score as Buffalo surged to 4-1.

Marv Hubbard ran a yard for one score and Ken Stabler threw 26 yards to Bob Moore 53 seconds later for another to rally the Raiders over San Diego. Rookie Dan Fouts had two TD passes for the Chargers.

Gabriel's 23-yard TD pass to Don Zimmerman as time ran out lifted the Eagles over St. Louis for their first win of the season. The pass came minutes after Gabriel threw 27 yards to Harold Carmichael to cut the Cardinal lead to 24-20.

Charley Johnson's four TD passes—three of them to Haven Moses—lifted Denver over winless Houston and Jan Stenerud's 36-yard field goal in the fourth quarter helped the Chiefs tie Green Bay.

Bob Lee brought the Atlanta offense to life with a pair of TD passes as the Falcons clubbed Chicago. Bill Butler's one-yard scoring run with 39 seconds left enabled the Saints to beat Detroit and register their second straight upset win.

Two Kinds Of Defenses

Skins' Works

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (UPI)—The Redskins' "nickel defense" paid off big dividends Sunday as veterans Pat Fischer and Dave Robinson picked Norm Snead's pockets with two second half interceptions to spark a 21-3 victory over the slumping New York Giants.

Redskins' Coach George Allen, who inserts a fifth back in his defensive secondary on third down passing situations, watched that strategy work as Fischer and Robinson came up with two game breaking plays. Fischer stepped in front of Bob Grim on the Redskins 19-yard line and streaked 68 yards to the Giant 13. Five plays later Larry Brown ran four yards for his second touchdown of the game to make the score 14-3 late in the third period.

Five minutes into the final period, Robinson picked off another Snead pass and rambled 28 yards for an insurance touchdown.

"Our defense was exceptional," said Allen. "Anytime you can hold a team to no touchdowns you're doing something. We put a lot of heat on Snead that forced him to throw short to his backs."

Snead, the only experienced quarterback on the team after Randy Johnson quit last week because he wasn't getting enough playing time, completed 19-of-32 passes but was intercepted four times.

"I'm not executing like I did last year," said Snead, the NFL's most accurate passer last season. "We've got to get back to basic fundamentals."

Snead, who suffered a 10-stitch cut on the bridge of his nose late in the game, was booed by the sellout crowd at the Yale Bowl for his ineffectiveness. Pete Gogolak provided all the New York offense with a 24-yard field goal.

"Sure I heard the crowd," said Snead. "I'm not deaf. An athlete can't let the fans control what he does."

The Giants, unbeaten in pre-season play, slipped to 1-3-1 and are all but out of the race in the National Conference East. The Redskins lead the division with a 4-1 record.

"I think we can go all the way," said Robinson, the veteran linebacker who played 11 seasons with Green Bay before Allen talked him into coming to Washington. "That's the reason I came out of retirement."

Snead, who completed his 2,000th pass in the game, might be forced into premature retirement if the offense continues to break down.

"I can't really explain it," said Giant wide receiver Don Herrmann. "There's been a lot of breakdowns. It's almost like being a fighter. It seems we're always counterpunching."

Pats' Fails

FOXBORO, Mass. (UPI)—Pssst! You can still run on the New England Patriots, even when they expect it.

With quarterback Joe Namath and Al Woodall out of action and rookie Bill Demory handling the signal calling, there was little if any doubt that the New York Jets would run the football Sunday afternoon.

And run it they did. With John Riggins banging out 132 yards on the ground and his teammates picking up another 100, the Jets managed to set up three field goals by Bobby Howfield for a 9-7 win over the New England Patriots.

Demory didn't throw a pass until 4:50 was gone in the third quarter. He completed only one pass in seven attempts for 11 yards but wound up with zero net yards passing when he was dropped for an 11-yard loss.

While the rest of the league has run successfully against the Patriots this season, New York Coach Weeb Ewbank made it sound as if he had planned, at least for a time, to use an aerial attack. But, said Ewbank, a 35 mile per hour wind whipping around Schaefer Stadium, made that impossible.

"We planned to throw more," Ewbank said. "One thing we didn't want to do was put the ball up there where it could hurt us. The wind was a big factor in the ball game."

Ewbank did say the Jets "worked real hard all week" on the running game "because we had been disgusted with our running this season."

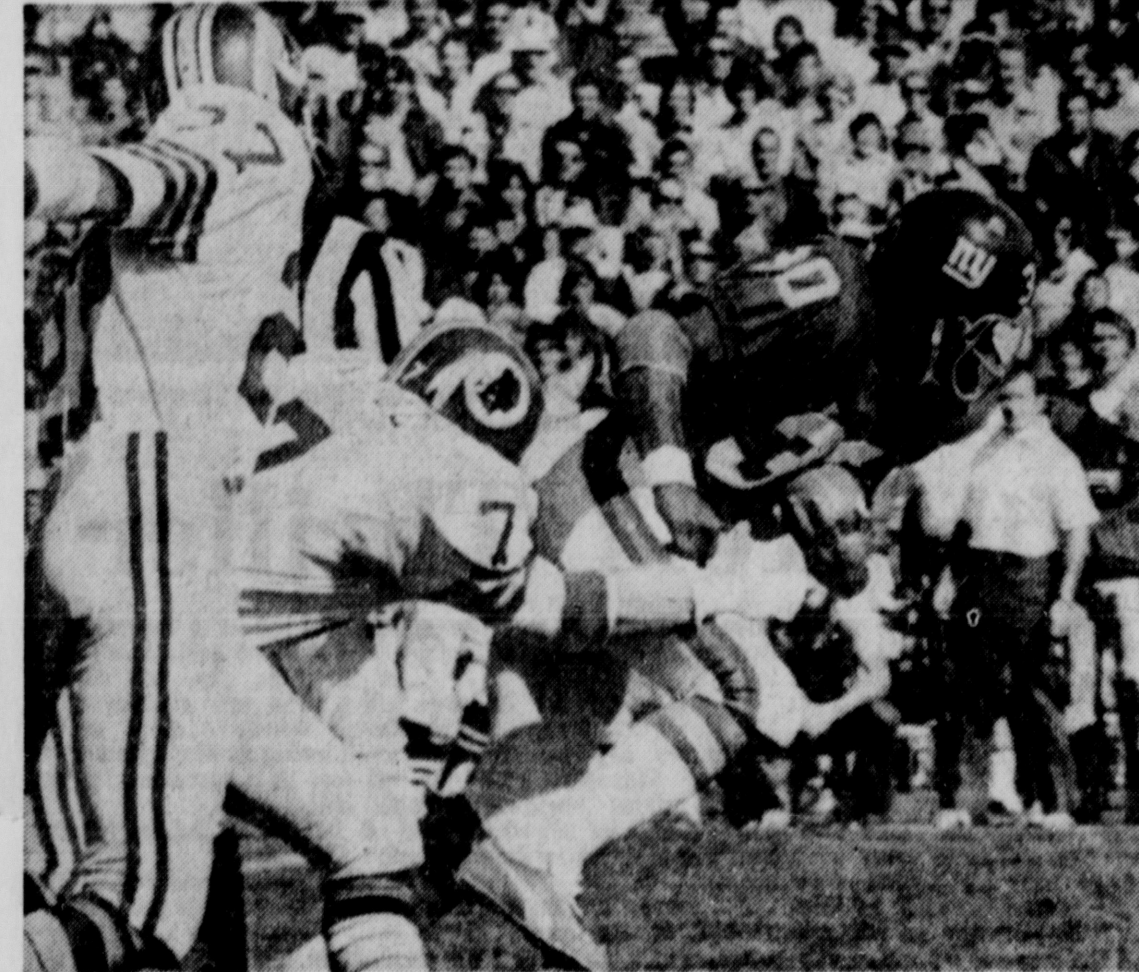

New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks, on the other hand, said the Patriots "worked all week on our defense against the run. We could call all the plays from the sidelines but we couldn't stop them."

Howfield's 22-yard field goal with 1:56 left in the fourth quarter pulled the game out for the Jets. He had given them a 6-0 lead earlier in the game on kicks of 40 and 39 yards.

Howfield got a reprieve on his first attempt of the day—a 45 yarder that went wide left—when New England was penalized for having too many men on the field. That gave him another shot from 40 yards, which he made.

The Patriots got their only score on a wierd play that started when New York kicker Julian Fagan attempted a punt after the Jets failed to move the ball from their own 30.

Guard Willie Banks broke through to bat down the punt at the Jets' 20. John Tanner knocked the ball into the air at the 15 and Art Moore and Sandy Durko took joint possession at the nine. Moore and Durko fumbled at the one, the ball squirted into the end zone and Will Foster pounced on it for a touchdown and a 7-6 lead at 8:27 of the third quarter.

Jackie Stewart Retires From Auto Racing

LONDON (UPI) — World championship as a member of Stewart announced his retirement from racing Sunday. But his career finished with the death of his Tyrrell-Ford teammate Francois Cevert of France at Watkins Glen, New York, Oct. 6.

Cevert died in practice for the U.S. Grand Prix, and the Scot withdrew from the race as a mark of respect for his French teammate.

Stewart, 34, made his decision public at a special celebration to mark his triumph in the 1973 Formula one champion racing driver Jackie the Tyrrell-Ford team.

He started racing in 1961 and won the world title first in 1969. He won it again in 1971 and then after being out of action with a duodenal ulcer, regained the title from Brazil's Emerson Fittipaldi this year with five grand prix victories in a 15-race series.

Stewart said he decided last April to retire this year but did not announce it because he felt the strain on his wife would be too great.

Despite his success—a record 27 grand prix wins—Stewart has always been a strong advocate of safety measures on tracks and in cars.

He had good reasons. Among close friends he lost in crashes were Britons Jim Clark and Piers Courage, New Zealander Bruce McLaren and Austrian Jochen Rindt.

Stewart, who was accompanied by his wife and two sons, paid tribute to Ken Tyrrell for preparing reliable and safe cars for him.

"I have been racing since 1961 and I haven't a mark on my body to tell me that I have been racing. I am proud of this. Without Tyrrell, I honestly believe that I would not now be anyone in motor racing. I could not have done it with another team," he said.

Tyrrell, still upset at the death of Cevert, could not make a public tribute to Stewart. All he would say was that South African driver Jody Scheckter has signed for Tyrrell-Ford and will drive in next year's world championship.

Ozaki Outlasts Yancey

INZAI, Japan (AP) — Japanese golfer Masahiro Ozaki, says tee-shot tips by American Bert Yancey helped him defeat his mentor for the $300,000 Pacific Masters golf tournament Sunday.

Ozaki and three-round leader Yancey duelled to a tie in the final round with 278 totals. After a three extra hole playoff, the young Japanese golfer easily won by three strokes.

After the victory, Ozaki said:

"Yancey gave me some good driving pointers when we played together in the first two rounds. It helped steady my game."

Ozaki, a former professional baseball pitcher, won $65,000 and Yancey earned $32,500. It brought Ozaki's earnings this year to more than $50,000, the first Japanese golfer to earn such a total.

Ozaki placed 8th in the Masters tournament at Augusta, Ga., last year. Yancey overshot the green and Yancey 65-70-73-70.

Yancey had to stroke left-handed which left his ball 13 feet from the pin, while Ozaki blasted out and landed his shot 10 feet from the hole. Yancey missed his putt by six inches and Ozaki one-putted for a par and the three-hole playoff.

Ozaki had rounds of 71-67-71-69 and Yancey 65-70-73-70.

Nevin Haunts Rangers

NEW YORK (AP) — Los Angeles Kings forward Bob Nevin was happy to have scored the goal which lifted his team to a 1-1 tie with the New York Rangers Sunday night.

After all, he had spent eight years with the Rangers, and it's always nice to score against a team that's traded you away. Also, "It's always good to score that first goal of the season and help the team," Nevin said.

But somehow, there was something unusual about the game.

"The crowd seemed to be rooting for the Mets and not paying attention to the hockey game," Nevin noticed.

It sure seemed that way. Every time the score of the New York Mets' World Series game against the Oakland A's was flashed on the message board at Madison Square Garden, the crowd cheered loudly. When the news of the Mets' extra-inning victory was posted, the throng burst into a noisy ovation.

Nevin, meanwhile, was too busy working to notice. He sneaked behind the Rangers' defense, took passes from Butch Goring and Terry Harper, broke in on New York goaltender Ed Giacomin and scored the tying goal.

Mike Murphy's goal at 11:25 of the second period had given the Rangers a 1-0 lead in the National Hockey League game.

"Well, some days you've got to be satisfied with half a loaf of bread," said Rangers' rookie coach Larry Popein. "This is one of those evenings when we worked very hard, but really didn't accomplish much."

New York's flashy right wing Rod Gilbert certainly didn't accomplish much; he didn't even dress for the game. In fact, rumors were flying around the Garden that Gilbert would soon be traded to the Pittsburgh Penguins in exchange for left-winger Greg Polis.

When asked why Gilbert missed the game, Popein said, "It was not a disciplinary reason, it was my reason," adding that he was speculating. Players who have been traded often miss the game before an official trade announcement is made.

"Gilbert will play Wednesday night," Popein added, although not stating specifically he would be playing for the Rangers.

Minnesota's Buster Harvey had been awarded a penalty shot after being pulled down from behind on a clean breakaway by Chicago rookie Dave Kryskow.

It was the classic confrontation: a forward alone with the puck at center ice and a goaltender alone with his thoughts. The first player to make a mistake would lose the battle of nerves.

The North Stars were leading 1-0 in the middle of the second period. A mistake by the goaltender would have made it tough for the Black Hawks to come back.

Esposito blocked the shot, held the North Stars off the rest of the way, and came away with a 1-1 tie when Stan Mikita's goal late in the period knotted the score.

In other National Hockey League action Sunday night, the Boston Bruins trimmed the New York Islanders 3-2; the Philadelphia Flyers pounded the Detroit Red Wings 5-2; and the Vancouver Canucks topped the Buffalo Sabres 3-1.

Bruins 3, Islanders 2
Boston's Ken Hodge flipped the rebound of a Bobby Orr shot over fallen New York goaltender Billy Smith to lift the Bruins to their 3-2 decision over the Islanders.

Flyers 5, Red Wings 2
The high-flying Philadelphia Flyers scored their third victory without a loss, pounding Detroit 5-2 on the strength of two goals scored while a man short.

Canucks 3, Sabres 1
Orland Kurtenbach scored two third-period goals to break a 1-1 tie and help Vancouver take a 3-1 decision from Buffalo. Buffalo's Jim Lorentz scored a first-period goal and Vancouver's Don Lever had scored in the second before Kurtenbach's contribution.

Can Texas Rebound From Worst Beating?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS I don't even know what happened. The eyes of Texas are on the process. This is a better New Paltz team than was the '72 edition, no doubt, but it's hard to do much more than break even if you only have half an offense to work with.

Ellenville dumped it all over Onteora, 52-0, but even the Ellies themselves found it hard to become ecstatic. There was something wrong. No team in the UCAL should be 52 points better than another one. The last we heard, no scholarships had been given out, and no recruiting was being done. What's the story, Boiceville? Ellenville isn't that good.

Pine Bush walloped Marlboro, 43-20, a result that caused Duke coach Art Smith to remark, "Our defense doesn't deserve any compliments." But the Bushman offense did, and Smith passed one out: "They executed so well it didn't make any difference what our defense did. We knew exactly where they were going, too."

Again, this was a game in which the teams stabilized their characters. Marlboro is small, basically inexperienced, but learning enough to score three touchdowns. Pine Bush is simply better. Wallkill got past Rondout, 17-7, but the fact that it had to come from behind to do it didn't help restore that once-ferocious Panther image. Wallkill is 4-1, but the fact is that the Panthers have gotten fat on week.

New Paltz State's beleaguered soccer program has come to this: Saturday, a Hawk team composed of the minimum 11 players, including five goalies in the field and one manager in the starting lineup, lost to weak Geneseo State, 11-0, in a SUN-YAC game.

"The sad part," says Coach Bob Durkin, who only three years ago took a New Paltz team to a fourth place finish in the NALIA tournament in North Carolina, "is that I know how good it was here."

It was the worst defeat ever suffered by a New Paltz eleven and things don't promise to get any better unless some of the better soccer players on campus put their personal things on the side and come out and perform. Only two regulars had legitimate excuses for missing Saturday's game: Bobby Bright, out with an injury, and Bobby Ottens, who had to work. The others, every single one of them, just didn't show.

Why, then, did New Paltz even bother to go through the trouble of traveling upstate and activating a manager to fill the lineup? Mainly, Durkin says, because that would be admitting that soccer is through at New Paltz and he can't believe it's come to that.

"It's not easy for the kids who are faithful," Durkin commented. But he added that if he dropped the rest of the schedule, it would not only violate contract agreements with future opponents, but it would also make it nearly impossible to start from scratch next year.

So Durkin hopes . . . hopes that Bright and Ottens will return for his Saturday's game at Buffalo, and hopes that some of his prima donnas will think better of their decision to leave the team and play out the schedule. He doesn't want to beg, no coach does, he just wants to keep soccer going at New Paltz.

SIDE BARS: A second stringer, Len Sakol, scored three of Geneseo's 11 goals. . . . The upstarters were 1-4-1 going in, but took advantage of New Paltz' obvious weakness and scored seven times in the first half. . . . Durkin said his squad played well for about seven minutes, but he added, "You can't make chicken salad out of chicken feathers." . . . It was the fourth straight loss for the Hawks after three wins and a tie while at full strength.

Michigan, ranked fifth, smothered Michigan State with 142 yards in total offense and breezed to a 31-0 triumph. No. 7 Penn State poured over four quick touchdowns midway through the first half—two of them just 13 seconds apart—and walloned Army 54-3.

Tennessee's Condredge Holloway scored one touchdown and passed for another as the eighth-ranked Vols shaded Georgia Tech 20-14.

Notre Dame, ranked ninth, lost four fumbles but got two short scoring runs from Wayne Bullock in downing Rice 28-0.

Mike Milcv passed 28 yards for one touchdown and 51 yards to set up another as No. 10 Louisiana State whipped Auburn 20-6.

Oklahoma's rout of Texas was paced by sophomore quarterback Steve Davis, who completed five of six passes for 185 yards and hit Tinker Owens and Billy Brooks with scoring strikes of 63 and 47 yards.

Owens also caught a 40-yarder from halfback Joe Washington as the Sooners victimized Texas safety Tommy Keel.

Even an offensive lineman got into Oklahoma's scoring act, guard Jamie Melendez recovering a Sooner fumble in the end zone. And here's more bad news for Texas—all seven Oklahoma touchdowns were scored by players with at least two more years remaining.

Upset Week in UCAL... There Weren't Any!

By STEVE KANE

KINGSTON If you forget about the magnitude of some of Saturday's football scores for a minute, you can begin to see evidence that the Ulster County Athletic League is emerging from its two-year bout with turmoil. In five games, there were no upsets.

Highland trounced New Paltz, 19-0. Highland usually does, but this year the feat was accomplished with even less difficulty than usual. That's really no surprise. Highland went into the game ranked tenth among the state's small schools and it deserves to enter its next contest rated even higher.

Still, four wins is more than most teams in the league can boast. Jerry Terezza's men are likely to add to that before the season ends.

Red Hook blanked Liberty, 14-0, and that game too solidified some trends. The Redskins evidently aren't capable of up setting anyone this year. And Red Hook is apparently not the potent squad of a year ago.

Hawks Split With Albany

ALBANY The New Palz State baseball team closed out its fall season Saturday with a doubleheader split with Albany State here to end the campaign with a 5-3 record. The Hawks dropped the opener, 1-0 in extra innings, then rebounded to win the nitecap, 3-2.

Good pitching kept both contests close, but Bob pier's five-hitter was the better performance in the second game. He fell behind, 2-1 in the first inning, but he blanked the Danes the rest of the way while his teammates tied it up in the sixth and won it in the seventh.

Singles by Kevin Mancini, Ben Roe and Benny Albino accounted for the winning run. Mancini led off with a sharp hit to left, pinch runner Todd Groshans took second on an errant pickoff attempt, and Roe moved him to third. Alberto got the RBI.

Dean Briggs threw a shutout for seven frames, but lost it when Albany pushed an unearned run across in the home eighth to win the first game. Briggs finished the short season with a 2-3 slate while Speirs' record climbed to 3-0.

Barbs

The boss has changed the title of one of his staff — he's now calling him a "production mangler."

They're refrigerating the safety deposit room at our bank — helps keep the steaks stashed there in prime condition.

Remember when "inflation" meant the act of blowing a balloon up?

Keeping a stiff upper lip will cost you about $10 in any bar these days.

MISSISSIPPI River boat by some crooked gamblers to fleece a man out of all his money on one hand. The game was bridge (the grandfather of contract). In bridge the dealer made trump; all hands were played at the one level; either opponent could double and there were unlimited doubles and redoubles.

Jim: "I see. The victim would make hearts trump. West would double and redouble and redouble would continue until the penalty for a one trick set would be everything the victim could be expected to pay. Incidentally, why was the hand dealt in hearts, not spades?"

Oswald: "In bridge, hearts was the ranking suit."

Jim: "At contract, South will bid seven hearts and be down seven tricks. There is a funny story about this. Someone stuck this hand in a duplicate game. Top score went to a player who got excited and bid seven no-trump. He was only down six while everyone else went down seven."

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

PEST: (Q.) Donald and I have never really dated. We became friends at school. It was nice, at first, talking to him between classes. But then he got a car and began coming over one or two nights a week.

He began to come over often. Now it is every night, all day on Saturday and after church on Sunday. These are not dates. We do not hold hands or kiss. He does not call and ask if he may come. He just comes on over and makes himself at home.

I have told him not to come so often, and a few times I have been gone on purpose.

He tells people we are going steady. No one ever calls me for a date anymore. The boys I used to date think we are steady. What can I do?—Hounded in Pennsylvania.

(A.) You can assert your independence. Tell Donald that he is taking up entirely too much of your time. Tell him you have other things to do. Tell him not to come to your house unless he first calls and gets permission.

Ask him not to tell anyone you are going steady with him because you are NOT. Some boys you have to be explicit with. Donald is one.

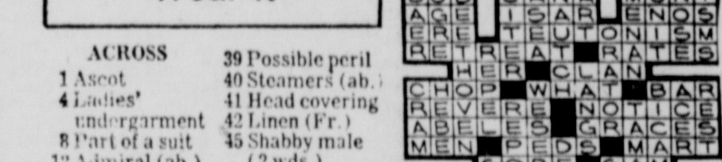

IN DEMAND: (Q.) Not to brag, but I guess you could say I am pretty popular. One girl and I sort of go together. But many, many other girls like me and want to be friends with me. This is not fake. Help!—14 in Florida.

(A.) (A.) You are free to be friendly with any girl who likes you or whom you like. Or any two girls, or three girls, or more.

You are NOT free to give any girl the impression that she is the only one—until you really mean it.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions or comments to Jean Adams, care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Three Military Leaders Flee Thailand Capital

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The former military premier of Thailand, his son and the deputy premier left Thailand today in a move to restore peace to the violence-torn capital, the government radio said.

The three Army leaders—former Premier Thanom Kittikachorn, Deputy Premier Phraphas Charusathien and Col. Narong Kittikachorn—were the focus of street clashes between foes of the country's government and the regime's troops and police for the past two days.

Phraphas was considered the most powerful man in the ruling group. Narong, Thanom's son, is the deputy chief of national security.

Thousands of flag-waving demonstrators had demanded the execution of the three leaders.

Thailand's new civilian premier appealed again today for an end to bloodshed as student bands attacked police stations, looted and burned government buildings.

Student representatives, who reportedly met with new Premier Sanya Thammasak, relayed his appeal for order to demonstrators in the square around Democracy Monument, the center of the week-long anti-government demonstrations which erupted into violence Sunday in this capital city.

Sanya did not immediately confirm the departure of the three military leaders and the demonstrators were skeptical.

Radio Thailand, the government radio, said Sanya reported that the new government had reached an understanding with the students, but it did not elaborate.

The new premier warned that those who looted and burned government installations would be suppressed by nightfall.

Truck convoys moved into the city today, carrying troop reinforcements in full battle gear.

King Bhumibol Adulyadej named Sanya, rector of Thammasat University, to replace Thanom Sunday. But throngs of demonstrators confronted the army's troops and tanks today, and sporadic shooting sent a steady stream of casualties to already crowded hospitals.

PLAIN TALK About The FUEL SHORTAGE!

Arabs, Jews Fight at Rally

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 30,000 pro-Israeli demonstrators clashed briefly with a handful of pro-Arab supporters Sunday in a rock-and-bottle exchange, but police on horseback drove the Arab protesters into a subway station and ended the violence.

In other parts of the nation, fund drives to help Israel in the Middle East war reported raising millions of dollars, and five volunteers left Philadelphia for Tel Aviv to help in the war effort.

Israeli supporters massed in New York's City Hall Park to hear speakers, including Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban and several celebrities, and to chant slogans urging a quick victory of Israel's war with the Arabs. But 40 Arab backers showed up, and the groups exchanged first obscenities and later rocks.

Police said they decided to clear out the small group of pro-Arab demonstrators after a stink bomb was hurled from their area into the opposing crowd and fistfights broke out amid rocks and bottles hurled back and forth. No one was reported seriously injured.

Eight persons were arrested, including Mohammed Mehdi, secretary general of the "Action Committee on Arab-American Relations."

Eban asked the chanting throng, "Do we have your love and solidarity?"

The crowd shouted, "Yes!"

"Then victory is ours!" Eban said.

Mayor John Lindsay drew cheers when he told the rally, "This city, with the largest Jewish population in the world, shares a special bond with the hopes and aspirations of the people of Israel."

Actor Theodore Bikel, one of the celebrities who attended, criticized Arab spokesmen "from countries that never had a democratic election and come here and tell us not to listen to public opinion."

Members of the crowd waved blue and white Israeli flags and carried signs reading "This Time Damascus," and "Israel Must Live," and bands played Israeli national music.

In Florida, Jewish leaders said $1 million has been raised in a defense fund so far, and New Jersey Jewish organizations said contributions for Israel have topped the $4 million mark.

The five volunteers from Philadelphia will live in a kibbutz while the manpower from that community is engaged in fighting.
